

INSIGHT

Independent Verification & Validation (IV&V)

Oculus Group LLC has the insight to see into and understand your organization's mission and to apply practical knowledge to each verification and validation task—utilizing innovative rapid assessment methodology and built-in quality assessment.

Redefined IV&V:

Innovation, Vision & ValueSM.

We've given new meaning to IV&V services, to define our unique approach. Our methodology is innovative, identifying the best process for your specific system or program rather than using costlier models from an auditor's book. Our cost-benefit analysis shows vision, relating budget to future outcomes and directing scrutiny appropriately during each stage of the process. Our overall service is value-based, with budget-sensitive early detection and correction of any product anomalies.

Independence:

Technical, Managerial, Financial.

Oculus Group LLC strictly adheres to industry standards for independent assessment, assuring absolute objectivity. As a resource separate from the technical development team, we use our own set of evaluation and analysis tools to find anomalies that may be overlooked by those too close to the project/program. We also are separate from the project/program management organization, independently selecting the components to analyze and evaluate during the process. Our financial independence from both groups assures that we can complete our tasks without risk of funding diversions or other monetary pressures.

Methodology:

Technical Capabilities, Project Management.

We offer a broad scope of IV&V support services for both small and larger projects. Our technical expertise ensures cost-effective verification and validation of software applications or non-IT programs, making sure you are using the right process to implement the right system/program. Our supervisory skills, tools, and techniques combine to manage and monitor all IV&V activities, identify improvement opportunities, evaluate output, and assure quality.
